The Firm:

Established in 1980, The Center for Forensic Economic Studies is a firm of economists and statisticians specializing in the analysis of damages and liability issues in litigation.

Center economists assist clients with discovery, gather data, prepare clear, comprehensive reports, critique reports of opposing experts, help frame arguments and, when necessary, present credible testimony.

Visit the Center's Web site at <http://www.cfes.com> for more information on the Center's practice, for capsule biographies of Center principals, and for articles written by Center staff members.

Center economists are available for seminars and associate-training programs. For details, contact Howard Gibson at 215.546.500 / hgibson@cfes.com
